

Form 1343 6-19 500

Title

The

Sh

PA

of Motion Picture

*by and the Best
Against The Day*

roduced and Manufactured by

THE EXCHANGE, Inc.

NEW YORK, N. Y.

Copyrighted

OCT 15 1921 ✓

THE FLY AND THE ANT. ✓

Two flies are passing the factory of some ants and, in reply to the question if they wanted work, they answer that they world owes them a living, to which the ant replies, "Try and Collect it." The flies spend their time annoying a sleeping man and pester a busy housemaid. They alight on her pie and, in her effort to catch them, she smashes the pie and the flies were propelled out of the window and land near the ant factory, where they had been asked if they wanted work. One of the flies lands near the ant that had asked them this question and seeing the fly laying dead says: "So you're the fellow the world owed a living. Rest in Peace."

Moral:

GAITY AND FOLLY HAVE THEIR DAY OF RECKONING.

Modern Adaptation: An office worker is shown being invited to paint the town red by a fellow worker, to which he replies that it is his busy day. After the title, "Some Years Later", the scene shows both men very much older. The industrious office worker is now a reputable citizen standing on the porch of his house telling the former lazy fellow "After you get through with that work, you can paint the barn red."

This document is from the Library of Congress
“Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, 1912-1977”

Collections Summary:

The Motion Picture Copyright Descriptions Collection, Class L and Class M, consists of forms, abstracts, plot summaries, dialogue and continuity scripts, press kits, publicity and other material, submitted for the purpose of enabling descriptive cataloging for motion picture photoplays registered with the United States Copyright Office under Class L and Class M from 1912-1977.

Class L Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi020004>

Class M Finding Aid:

<https://hdl.loc.gov/loc.mbrsmi/eadmbrsmi.mi021002>

National Audio-Visual Conservation Center
The Library of Congress